

Abstract

The invention provides a way for a network provider to assume the processing for the usage of software products that are offered via a network. The network provider can offer this processing as a service for the provider of software products, who wishes to "outsource" these tasks.

5

005220 254E1560